Medical Transfer and Partnership.

30, BUCKLERSBURY, CHEAPSIDE.

MR. ORRIDGE, Medical Transfer Agent and Valuer, in offering his services to the Profession, has pleasure in referring to the fact, that for well nigh twenty years his name has been known in the advertising columns of the leading medical journals as that of one to whom a very large proportion of the medical men throughout the kingdom have confided their interests in the adjustment of PARTNERSHIP and TRANSFERS.

Mr. ORRIDGE has the honour of being permitted to give reference to the testimony of those for whom he has been thus concerned during this lengthened period—a privilege that he trusts will be regarded as a conclusive proof of the sincerity of his endeavours to conduct these transactions in an honourable and straightforward manner.

He takes leave to point out that the instrumentality of his extensive connexion enables him to offer particular advantages in the furtherance of their respective objects to those who are about to RECEIVE PARTNERS or to RELINQUISH or to COMMENCE practice.

He is fully aware of the evil of an undue publicity in negociations relating to Medical Practices, and every care is taken that particulars entrusted to him are submitted only to suitable applicants, the private nature of the information given being strictly enjoined.

Purchasers who will communicate (confidentially) the nature and extent of their wishes regarding investment can be apprised of appropriate opportunities as they occur.

On occasions where ADVICE is required in forming a correct conclusion as to the worth or eligibility of a Practice, Mr. ORRIDGE trusts that his familiarity with the various contingencies that govern value will be found of considerable service to those by whom he is employed.

Orthopædic Mechanism.

MR. HEATHER BIGG having made Orthopædic Mechanics a special study for upwards of twenty years, and during that period visited every Continental Institution where Deformities are systematically treated, is enabled to place a very enlarged experience at the disposal of those Medical Men who take interest in these cases, and need appliances for them. He has lately formed a large and valuable Collection of working Models, illustrating every practical Apparatus likely to prove useful in the Treatment of Spinal Curvature, Club-foot, Hernia, Loss of Limbs, Paralysis, &c. These he has had carefully arranged at his new residence—56, Wimpole-street, Cavendish-square, London—where he will be glad to receive the visit of Medical Men requiring mechanical aid for their patients. The advantage of this procedure is palpable, for not only can a Surgeon see and compare together several varieties of Mechanism for the same Deformity, but be able to suggest the combination especially demanded by the case he is at the time interested in.

DR. BLY'S AMERICAN ARTIFICIAL LEG

(PATENTED).

This beautiful invention surpasses all other artificial limbs yet invented. It has a rotative ankle joint, and presents a flesh-coloured enamelled surface, and possesses an action perfectly like nature. It also admits of being washed, like an ordinary limb, when needed.

An illustrated pamphlet sent free on application.

ON DISLOCATIONS AND FRACTURES.

"The English press has quite exhausted the words of praise in recommending this admirable treatise."—Boston (United States) Medical and Surgical Journal.

"We congratulate the author on having produced one of the most useful and elegant practical works on anatomy ever published. The practitioner, when called upon to operate, will at one glance be able to see his way as clearly as though the human subject were before his eyes."—Lancet.

"The drawings are executed with the skill of the most accomplished anatomist, and the colouring of the plates done in such a manner as to reflect high credit on the artist."—Medical Times and Gazette.

"While in the fidelity of the representations, and in the beauty of the illustrations, it is surpassed by no work which we have seen, its price is so low as to bring it within the reach of all."—British Medical Journal.

"No one promises better to impress upon the mind of the surgeon old views which may be partially known, and new views which ought to be fully known, than Mr. Maclise; and the work shows that, under his guidance, the operating surgeon may most profitably spend his time and study. The fidelity and accuracy of the plates reflect the highest credit upon the anatomical knowledge of Mr. Maclise."—Edinburgh Medical Journal.

"This work is a wonderful triumph, showing what ingenuity, skill, and enterprise can effect if supported by a sufficient number of purchasers."—Dublin Medical Press.

"As a surgical anatomist, Mr. Maclise has probably no superior. This work bids fair to redeem our country from the stigma of possessing no original work on surgical anatomy that could take rank in regard to completeness and beauty of execution with many Continental productions that might be named."—British and Foreign Medico-Chirurgical Review.

Every candidate must give fourteen days' notice in writing to the Registrar of the College of his intention to present himself for examination, and all certificates and testimonials required by the bye-laws must be left with the Registrar of the College at least fourteen days before the day of examination.—XX. Any candidate not approved by the Censors' Board shall not (except by special permission of the College) be re-admitted to examination until after the lapse of a year.—XXI. This Hospital, founded by Thomas Guy, in 1721, for the reception of 400 patients, and recently enlarged through the aid of a large bequest from the late William Hunt, contains at the present time nearly 600 beds; and, with its extensive buildings and large airing grounds, occupies an area of about seven acres. The Hospital is divided into Medical, Surgical, Clinical, Ophthalmic, Lunatic, and Venereal Wards, independently of separate rooms for special cases. In the year 1863, 7001 persons were relieved by its means; 5507 as in-patients, 11,409 as out-patients, and 49,520 as casualties, besides 1517 women who were attended in their confinements, and 3836 who received advice for minor injuries. Between 400 and 450 patients are now received into the older buildings, and 300 into the part of the new wing already completed; the latter building, when finished, will contain 500 persons.

Wards containing thirty beds are devoted to Ophthalmic Surgery, and the patients in these have their special dressers and reporters appointed in the usual manner, and 1500 annually are seen as out-patients. During the past year the eye department of the Hospital has been extended, and a room has been fitted up for operating on the eye, and another provided with ophthalmoscopes for the use of Students.

Gentlemen desirous of becoming Students must produce satisfactory testimony as to their Education and Conduct.

LONDON SCHOOL OF DENTAL SURGERY.

32, Soho Square, W.

For Regulations of the Royal College of Surgeons relating to Professional Education of Candidates for examination in Dental Surgery, see p. 182.)

It has been felt by the founders of the London School of Dental Surgery, that the opportunities afforded to the Student at the existing Medical Schools and General Hospitals, for the acquirement of a knowledge of those subjects embraced in an ordinary Medical education, could not be equalled by a special School. While, on the other hand, the opportunities offered by a special School in connexion with a Dental Hospital for the instruction of Pupils on the subjects which specially relate to Dental Surgery, would be much greater than could be secured in an institution devoted to general Medical education. Hence in the formation of the London School of Dental Surgery, provision has been made for teaching those branches of science only which pertain specially to Dentistry; and the School has been organized in connexion with the Dental Hospital of London, in order that practical instruction in subjects specially pertaining to Dental Surgery may be accompanied by systematic teaching, under the conditions enjoined by the Curriculum.

The Hospital was opened on Monday, October 3rd, 1859, for the reception of Pupils, who receive practical instruction from the Dental Officers, and when sufficiently advanced, are themselves intrusted with the treatment of cases.

The Lectures on the subjects specially pertaining to Dental Surgery (excepting those upon Mechanical Dentistry and Metallurgy) will be given during the Summer Medical Session, in order that Students may be at liberty to attend at any of the existing Medical Schools those lectures enjoined by the Curriculum upon subjects which are not peculiar to Dental Surgery.

Ibbetson, F.G.S. Dental Surgery and Pathology: Mr. Samuel Cartwright. Mechanical Dentistry: Mr. Robert Hepburn. Metallurgy in its Application to Dental Purposes: Mr. G. H. *ROYAL SCHOOL OF MINES.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE AND ART, JERMYN STREET, S.W.—Established 1851.

Direct., Sir R. I. Murchison; Regist., Mr. T. Reeks.

The chief object and distinctive character of this Institution (to which everything else is made subsidiary) is to give a practical direction to the course of scientific study. Although the education provided in it will not of itself qualify the student to undertake the direction of mining and other technical operations, yet the knowledge which he may acquire of the principles of the sciences on which the arts are respectively based will, in combination with future training, render him in the highest degree competent, not only to engage in any special branch of industry, but to promote its further development. The mode of instruction is by lectures, by written and oral examinations, by practical teaching in the laboratories and drawing-office, and also by field excursions, under certain conditions.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF CHEMISTRY.

315, Oxford Street, W.

The Royal College of Chemistry is the property of the Government, and its spacious and well furnished Laboratories are used for the instruction of the pupils of the Government School of Mines. The instruction in this Institution is under the superintendence of Professor A. W. Hofmann, Ph.D., and consists of—

I. A course of Practical Analysis in the Laboratory.

II. A series of Lectures on General Chemistry.

The Laboratory Instruction, which is divided into a qualitative and quantitative course, is necessarily adapted to the previous knowledge of the student, such as he may have acquired by attending the chemical lectures delivered at the Institution. The course commences with experimental exercises, calculated to make the pupil practically acquainted with the general properties of the simple substances. The next subjects of his study are the analytical properties of the elements and of their most important compounds. The knowledge thus acquired is subsequently put into practice in the performance of a series of analyses, so arranged as to lead the student, step by step, from the simplest to the most complicated cases, both of qualitative and quantitative analysis. Particular attention is paid to the use of the blowpipe, and the various methods of commercial testing, alkalimetry, chlorimetry, &c.

Each laboratory student works independently; there are no classes. All operations are superintended by the Professor and his assistants. A table, with drawers, cupboard, and shelves, is appropriated to every pupil. The Institution supplies gas, fuel, and re-agents. Larger and more expensive instruments, such as air-pumps, thermometers, barometers, condensers, large evaporating dishes, &c., may be had on loan from the Laboratory. The student has to provide himself only with the apparatus specified in the Laboratory Regulations.

The courses of Lectures are delivered in the Theatre at the College in Oxford-street. They consist of 80 Lectures, and treat of General Chemistry, with especial reference to its application in the arts and manufactures.

The object of this science is to ascertain the distinguishing characteristics, physical and moral, of the varieties of mankind which now inhabit and have formerly inhabited the earth, and to ascertain the causes of such characteristics, in order to determine the relationships of the several varieties of man to each other.

The Society has formed a library, which is continually being enriched by the addition of books for the student, and for those who wish to verify the statements of writers on Ethnology; and also by philological and other special works, for those engaged in advancing the science.

The Society meets twice a month on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, during the winter season from November to June inclusive, for the reading of papers and other communications, and for the discussion of subjects connected with Ethnology.

Royal Institution of Great Britain, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly, W.—Established under a Charter granted by his Majesty King George the Third, in the year 1800. Enlarged and confirmed by an Act of Parliament in the year 1810. Pres., Duke of Northumberland; Treas., Mr. W. Pole; Sec., Dr. H. Bence Jones; Hon. Prof. of Chem., Dr. W. T. Brande; Fuller. Prof. of Chem. and Dir. of Labor., Dr. M. Faraday; Fuller. Prof. of Physiol., Mr. J. Marshall; Prof. of Nat. Philos., Mr. J. Tyndall; Prof. of Chemistry, Mr. E. Frankland; Hon. Lib., Mr. G. The Royal Institution is an association of individuals who are attached to Science, and desirous to promote its advancement.

Its chief objects are—

1. To promote scientific and literary research.
2. To teach the principles of inductive and experimental science.
3. To exhibit the application of these principles to the various arts of life; and
4. To afford opportunities for study.

The Royal Institution comprises—

I. A Laboratory for the promotion and advancement of chemical and physical science, by experiments and original investigations. In this Laboratory the researches of Professor Davy, of Professor Faraday, and of Professor Tyndall, extending over a period of above half a century, have been conducted. The laws of Electro-chemical Decomposition,—the Decomposition of the fixed Alkalies,—the establishment of the nature of Chlorine,—the philosophy of Flame,—the Condensibility of many Gases,—the science of Magneto-Electricity—the twofold Magnetism of Matter, comprehending all known substances,—the Magnetism of Gases, and the transmission of Heat through Gases,—are the results of investigations carried on in the Laboratory of the Royal Institution during the last sixty years. The cost of these researches has been defrayed by the willing contributions of the Members, without any aid from the Government of the country.

II. Public Lectures intended to supply that which books or private instruction can rarely afford:—Experimental exhibition, highly illustrated delineation, or detailed descriptions of matters connected with science or art. They usually comprehend, a short course at Christmas, and six or more courses, before and after Easter; the Season lasting from the middle of January to the middle of June. The subjects of these lectures are generally some of the different branches of inductive science—as mechanics, chemistry, heat, light, electricity, astronomy, geology, botany, and physiology. Courses are also occasionally given on subjects of general interest, as on literature, the fine arts and music.

III. Weekly Meetings of the members of the Institution.—These are held on every Friday evening during the Session, and the members have the privilege of introducing two friends to them by tickets. The object of these meetings is to bring together men of literature and science, and to afford opportunities of communicating, by discourses in the theatre, either new views or new applications of known truths, and of demonstrating by experiment, and familiarizing by description new results which have been recently recorded in the scientific memoirs of philosophical societies. Abstracts of these Discourses, prepared by the speakers, are printed in the "Proceedings of the Royal Institution," a copy of which is sent to the members. Volumes I., II., and III., (1851 to 1862) are ready, price, to members, 7s. 6d.; to non-members, 10s. 6d. each volume, bound. The parts are sold for 2s. 6d. each; the numbers for 1s. 6d. each.

IV. A Museum, containing scientific apparatus of historical interest, mineral specimens, and other collections.—The chief object of this museum is to furnish illustrations for the lectures and the Friday evening discourses.

V. A Library of about 34,000 volumes, including works of science,—the transactions of the principal British and Foreign academies and scientific institutions,—British history and topography, including the ancient chronicles, eminent modern historians, county histories, and many rare productions relating to these subjects,—works on literature, art, and antiquarian research,—the best editions of the Greek and Latin Classics and the Fathers of the Church,—British and Foreign literature,—and an extensive collection of historical and miscellaneous tracts, commencing with the sixteenth century.

A New Classified Catalogue of the Library (with a synopsis of contents and indexes of authors and subjects) embracing nearly a thousand pages, has been prepared by Mr. Vincent, the keeper of the library. It is sold (bound) to the members of the Royal Institution, for 10s.; to the public, for 15s. A list of the additions is printed annually, and sent to the members.

In the Upper Library will be found a classified collection of Encyclopædias, Dictionaries, and Textbooks, arranged for immediate reference.

VI. A Reading-room for Study.—In this apartment will be found many series of English, French,

* No return from the Secretary for the present year.

German, and Italian scientific Memoirs and Journals, and a great number of works on the natural, medical, and mathematical sciences.

VII. A Newspaper Room, in which the principal Journals, Magazines, and Reviews, English and Foreign, are regularly provided.

A Circulating Library is subscribed to, in order to afford the members an opportunity of seeing the newest books as soon as published.

 The Reading and Newspaper Rooms are open every day from Nine in the morning till Eleven in the evening. The Upper Library is open every day from Ten in the morning till Ten in the evening, except on the Fridays during the season, when it is closed at Four in the afternoon.

Terms of Admission: New Members, when proposed, are balloted for at the next General Monthly Meeting, and pay on Admission Ten Guineas (Five Guineas as the first Annual Payment, and Five Guineas as a contribution to the Library Fund); or Sixty Guineas in lieu of all payments. Members are admitted to ALL Lectures delivered in the Institution, to the Libraries, to the Museum, and to the weekly evening meetings, and have the right of voting at the monthly meetings; they may also introduce by tickets two friends to each of the weekly evening Meetings, and their families have the privilege of attending the Lectures at a reduced charge. And for every additional subscription of Twenty Guineas at one time, or Three Guineas per annum, each Member is entitled to introduce personally, or by a written order, one visitor to each of the public lectures.

Annual Subscribers to the Institution pay Five Guineas, and One Guinea to the Library fund on admission. They are admitted to all the courses of lectures delivered in the theatre of the institution, to the libraries, and to the newspaper rooms, but have not the privilege of attending the evening meetings.

Syllabuses of the Lectures and Friday Evening Meetings may be obtained at the House of the Institution. The lecture arrangements for 1865 will include courses by Professors Tyndall, Frankland, Marshall, and others.

These ends to be accomplished without interfering with the valuable time of the Members of the Profession, or exposing them to the unpleasantness which necessarily attends application for money, or the uncertainty and risk of employing private collectors.

2nd. To assist Members with information and advice in the purchase and sale of practices.

3rd. To raise a Benevolent Fund by devoting to that object the profits arising from the general operations of the Society.

The Society consists of qualified Medical Practitioners only. Annual Subscription, one guinea; a firm consisting of two partners, a guinea and a half; a firm of three partners, two guineas.

Savile-row, W.; Hon. Sec., W. H. Broadbent, M.D., 23, Upper Seymour-st. Portman-sq. W. Coll. Mr. W. Self, Nugent Villa, 216, Richmond-rd. Hackney, N.E.

An earnest appeal is now made on behalf of this Fund to the Profession at large, in the confident expectation that such appeal cannot be in vain. Instituted in the year 1836, it has pursued its unwearied course of usefulness and efficiency; it has passed its day of small things, and now stands before the public as one of the most useful of the medical charities. Its income has increased from an average of 50*l.* a year annual subscriptions, and a like amount of donations for the first five years, to 1451*l.* 14s. 6d. subscriptions, donations, legacies, and interest on bank-stock in the last year. The number of cases relieved has augmented from an average of three, in the first five years, to the fearful number of eighty-eight in the last year; and, besides this casual relief, amounting to 882*l.*, the Benevolent Fund distributed 428*l.* in annuities, thus making a sum of 1310*l.* actually expended in the relief of misery.

The Medical Benevolent Fund is distinguished by doing much, and promising little. The Committee meet at three o'clock p.m., on the last Tuesday of every month, to receive applications. Strict inquiry is made respecting each case, for the Committee feel the great responsibility that devolves upon them; but when the cases are really deserving of aid, it is promptly and liberally bestowed, without expense, and without trouble to the poor applicants. Is it your wish, prosperous medical men, that the tear of your brother's widow shall fall; or the cry of the helpless orphan shall be heard in vain? Is it possible that the wants of the aged practitioner, disabled from practice by disease, shall be made known to his 20,000 brethren, and that they should reply—"Be ye warmed and be ye filled," as we are, and yet refuse to give a single shilling to those who are so much in need of kindness? Remember that there is, or ought to be—"more pleasure in giving than in receiving."

W. NEWNHAM, Vice-President.

Merriman, 3, Charles-street, Westbourne-terrace, W.; Coll., Mr. C. J. F. Renton, Laurel Cottage, Hampstead, N.W. Bankers, Fuller, Banbury, and Co, 77, Lombard street.

This Society was formed in the year 1788, by Drs. T. Denman, R. Denison, A. Douglas, J. Sims, and J. Squire, and Messrs. W. Chamberlaine and T. Randall, with the object of establishing a brotherhood for relieving, half yearly, those Widows and Orphans of its deceased Members who might need assistance.

It unites the advantages of a Provident with those of a Benevolent Society. It is Provident, as by the small yearly subscription of Two Guineas the Members do, through it, protect their own families from destitution, should they unexpectedly need it; and it is Benevolent, as its benefits are conferred only on those who are left in indigent circumstances.

The Society has been greatly assisted by legacies and contributions from Members and others, and has especially to acknowledge the gracious patronage of various members of the Royal Family.

The permanent efficiency of the Society depends on the maintenance of a due proportion between the available income and the claims made on the funds. Computations have been made by experienced actuaries on all the points susceptible of calculation by way of average.

The experience of seventy-four years has fully proved the need that existed for this Society, for the last Report shows that 123 widows, and 188 children of Members of the Society, (comprised in 136 families relieved,) have been placed in comfort by an aggregate sum of above 63,000*l.*, paid in half-yearly sums. Many of these recipients were in a state of absolute poverty, when the Society stepped in to succour them.

In the year 1863, 1929*l.* 10*s.* was distributed among forty-three widows and thirty-one orphans.

Great care has been taken, in the management of its resources, to secure the means of affording permanently such relief as the Society provides for those whose unfortunate condition renders assistance needful; and the good which it has accomplished has proved the wisdom and benevolence of those who originally planned the Society, and the prudence and efficiency with which its affairs have since been conducted.

The Society's affairs are managed by a President, twelve Vice-Presidents, three Treasurers, and twenty-four Directors, who are elected by the Members in October, and whose services are gratuitous.

All legally qualified Members of the Profession, residing within the County of Middlesex, or WITHIN THE LONDON DISTRICT POST, are eligible for proposal; the mode of admission is by ballot.

Proposal Papers, and other communications for the Court of Directors, should be sent to the Secretary before the first Wednesday in the months of March, June, September, and December. Laws, Lists, and Forms of Proposal may be obtained from the Secretary, and will be sent by Post on receipt of a Stamp.

The Secretary attends at the Office, 53, Berners-street, every Wednesday and Friday, from four to five p.m.
